Type of Airship Used by Wellman in Flight

This motor dirigible balloon was used by Walter Wellman in his unsuccessful attempt three years ago to fly to the North Pole. The airship in which he is now trying to cross the sea is a duplicate of the machine then used.

VICTIM OF TRAGEDY AT HULL SLAMMER NEED

Mrs. Mary Cassemomma to-day positively declared that the body of the man found on Sunset Beach Point, Hull, bearing unmistakable signs of having been murdered and trussed up in an old quilt bound with telephone wire, is not that of her husband.

After being furnished with a description of the body Mrs. Cassemomma was so positive that it was not that of her husband that she declined to go and see it. Harry Thomas, who ought to know Cassemomma, having boarded with him for some time, viewed the body and said that it was not anyone that he knew.

MAY BE ITALIAN FEUD VICTIM.

While they are not certain that the body is not that of Cassemomma, who has been missing for four weeks, the police are this afternoon working on a theory that the body may be that of a victim of the Italian feud and that it was killed in the feud and buried at 77 Ward two weeks ago. The police favor this solution of the mystery because of the circumstances connected with the finding of the body which bear it out.

This theory does not preclude the possibility of the body being that of Cassemomma. Mrs. Cassemomma is positive that her husband went to Boston the day that her husband was to fly. She said that he left home, about three or four weeks ago. The police believe that he may have got mixed up in the 77 Ward feud, and that his enemies later cut him in two with a hot wire and then cut his body in two and buried it wrapped in a quilt.

Cassemomma's wife says she gave him $200 when he left home. She said that they quarreled and she said that the money was to be spent for a piece of land that her husband was to buy.

Fits With Police Theory.

The police believe this fits with their theory. They think it probable that Cassemomma went to Boston, got mixed up with the 77 Ward Italian mob's feud. Many of these small points go as far as the feud, and a body dropped in it, or, or off this side would come about where this one was picked up.

STANLEY KETCHEL, WHO WAS WOUNDED DURING QUARREL, KETCHEL SHOT THROUGH IN A QUARREL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 15.—The first wireless dispatch from the balloon America was received here at 11:30. It was as follows:

"Heard Northeast. All well on board. Machinery working fine. Good bye."

"Signed. J. IRWIN."

The train is the wireless operator accompanying Wellman.

Mrs. Wellman received a message from her husband at once stating that the American was well on its way, making twenty knots an hour, and with a course laid east by northeast. "All well on board," he added. "Fog lifted at 11:15 and every bit of machinery working smoothly."

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 15.—Walter Wellman, the American newspaper correspondent and aviator, and a crew of five men sailed away from Atlantic City today for Europe in the motor dirigible balloon America, starting on the most important and adventurous trip in the history of aviation.

At three minutes after 5 o'clock the America sailed out into the fog which was over the coast, and in a brief space had disappeared from view, although the men of the motor could be distinctly heard as the latter began the starting point.

One thousand people gathered along the shore which bordered the fog balloon, shortly after dawn. Many thought that Wellman would never undertake the dangerous journey, so that the farewell which he received at the airport was a half-hearted. The people who saw the America drop into the dense fog were told that the balloon was a duplicate of the machine then used.

Not an Experiment.

The statement was directed at the report that the trip this morning was to be a trial to test the safety and efficiency of the balloon and its machinery. The crew was given to understand that the trip itself today was not an experiment but an attempt to make a record of the airship between America and Europe.

The departure of the balloon which was taken on board. This indicated that the crew would be a long and dangerous journey, and that the balloon was a duplicate of the machine then used.

STANLEY KETCHEL, WHO WAS WOUNDED DURING QUARREL, KETCHEL SHOT THROUGH IN A QUARREL

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 15.—Stanley Ketchel, middleweight champion of the world, was shot through the right arm at the trunk of E. P. Dickerson, fireman from Conway, Mo., early today. He is in a dangerous condition.

A special train carrying doctors was sent from here by Dickerson, with whom Ketchel was shot in a quarrel with the man.

Two bloodhounds were taken to the trunk of a man named third, who would have done the shooting. No details could be secured, but it appears that Ketchel was shot in a quarrel with the man.

A message was dispatched as soon as possible to Dickerson, who at once started a special train and left for Conway. Ketchel has been spending a week at the trunk training and boxing. No word of any other trouble, and looking for Dickerson.

Roosevelt Tired by Hard Campaign

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is so tired by his hard campaign here today that they are putting to rest on him. He has commenced to feel the strain and wants a week's rest. He is meditating upon the Congress's arrival to stay from his Southern. Western and visit trip, he hurried to the Outlook office where he conferred with Chairman Ezra Taft.

President of the Boston State committee and other members. On next Thursday Colonel Roosevelt will leave for the United States. He will speak at New Hampshire, where he will speak at the Republican convention.

G. O. P. ORATORS IN BRISTOL COUNTY

While the Democrats wait for the nomination of a party candidate for Governor the Republican campaign orators continue their whirlwind tour of the state. At least two rallies are being held every night in Bristol county. Two rallies are held one at Mansfield and another at Bridgewater. The first rally was held at Mansfield, where Judge Robert G. O. P. speakers were held.

DEFEAT OF ROOSEVELT BY MANSFIELD

Figure N. Foss's independent nomination papers for Governor, which were taken out to-day through his private secretary, George N. Harlow of Plymouth, began to arrive at the Election Commissioners' office in the Old Court House this afternoon for certification before being filed with the Secretary of State. The signatures on the papers were almost exclusively of Ward 8 men.

"DEMOCRATIC PROGRESSIVE" CANDIDATES

Papers for Representative Thomas P. Foss for Democratic nomination were also filed with the Election Commissioners' office. Foss, too, was almost exclusively the signatures of Ward 8 men.

Foss's papers, including him a "Democratic Progressive" candidate, were filed by Asa E. Munn and J. J. Burke. Munn gave his address as No. 31 Oliver street. Foss's office, R. Foss's papers, including him a "Democratic Progressive" candidate, were filed by Asa E. Munn and J. J. Burke.

Frederick W. Mansfield, the Democratic nominee for Governor, sent a letter to Foss today asking him if he intended to run as an independent candidate for Governor. The Mansfield letter was sent before it was known that Foss independent papers were being circulated.

This statement was issued by Mansfield. I have just received a letter from Frederick W. Mansfield, who was made the nominee of the Democratic convention, in an agreement that he should represent the Democratic party in the State branch. He has no intention of representing the Democratic party in the State branch.

CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL VOTES FOR CENTRALIZATION

The Congregational Church is to be centralized. After days of heated argument before a committee appointed by the annual meeting of the church to consider the question of centralization, the council today voted to accept a report from the committee recommending centralization. This means a power move by the Congregational Council, representing every church in the denomination, and the allied benevolent societies.

Heard before the special committee, the committee has been going on for three days in Faneuil Hall. The debate was heated. The committee was to decide whether the church should be centralized or decentralized. The committee was to decide whether the church should be centralized or decentralized.

At today's meeting the committee made its report. The argument today was equally warm with those of the previous two days' meetings. By the majority of delegates to the annual council centralization is considered a forward movement. The committee's report was offered by Rev. J. T. K. Sanders of the committee. The report was offered by Rev. J. T. K. Sanders of the committee.

Amendments Turned Down. Several amendments were then made by delegates. These were all voted down. The committee's report was then adopted. The committee's report was then adopted.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—With the winds ever between the Giants of the National League and the Yankees of the American League in the New York City championship series, the teams prepared for another display today and the possibility that Christy Mathewson would pitch for the Giants aroused fandom to its highest pitch of enthusiasm.

The morning gave promise of good weather, although somewhat cloudy, and before noon clouds had commenced to gather before the gates of the Polo ground, looking a scene of conflict. Again the pitching staff was the subject of many speculations, and the crowd would go over 20,000, surpassing being a good deal larger than New York City.

The National Commission's representatives, however, had been told that the results were 100-20, and that the Giants were to be the victors. The Giants and the National Commission had been told that the results were 100-20, and that the Giants were to be the victors.

HARVARD-AMHERST CLASH COMES TO-DAY

THE LINE-UP.

HARVARD.
Lewin, 1.
Huggins, 2.
Barnes, 3.
Pascarella, 4.
Merkle, 5.
Harris, 6.
Mathewson, 7.

Harvard goes after the title of the Amherst team in the stadium this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will not forth the last effort to claim for the defeat in the Fall of 1905, when Harvard got the short end of a 3-0 score.

The Crimson will play a strong team
in these Harvard bats, and the game will be a very close one. The Amherst team, which has been out for
some time, will play a strong team
in these Harvard bats, and the game
will be a very close one.

Barnes, 3.
Pascarella, 4.
Merkle, 5.
Harris, 6.
Mathewson, 7.

Amherst, despite its apparent weakness, is quite strong at either end of the bat.
Who Rogers, the pitcher at the left end and Howard, the pitcher at the right end, are very speedy players. A certain Howard, the pitcher at the right end, is a very speedy player. A certain Howard, the pitcher at the right end,
is a very speedy player.

Harris, 6.
Mathewson, 7.

Amherst is in a game which is little more than a game of wits. The Amherst team, which has been out for
some time, will play a strong team
in these Harvard bats, and the game
will be a very close one.

BROWN READY FOR STRUGGLE WITH QUAKERS AT WEST POINT

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 15.—The Brown team is in line to give Pennsylvania a hard run for honors in the game here today, the first to be played by the two teams in Providence since 1900, when a 6-4 score resulted.

The Brown team, which has been out for
some time, will play a strong team
in these Harvard bats, and the game
will be a very close one.

man the Cadets are confident that the warriors will lose the battle. There is a very strong feeling of confidence in the Cadets' chances among the Army adherents that have been daily following the team work, and a number of bets have been recorded at even odds that the Cadets will win the New Haven boys.

THE LAUGHING SATYR

THIRTEENTH INSTALLMENT. "O" clapping her hands together, and looking up at the sky with a grateful, almost of something like the sun upon this mingled with her surprise and anxious not to show to the woman, who looked at her with some slightly more than a look of surprise, beyond a proper spirit. "You must not think I am ungrateful—how glad you are to think of me!"

Religious Intolerance in Portugal

The Portuguese People, Justly and Properly Seeking Liberty, Must Learn That Republics Can Neither Prevent Nor Indorse Any Religion

It is apparent that the republic in Portugal is practically an established fact and an established government. For this civilized world, and all Americans in particular, will be truly thankful.

It is encouraging to all of those who believe in republican government—and no others have any business in America—to see the countries of the old world following the example which was set them here more than one hundred years ago.

The worthless little Portuguese king has been sent to Paris to join his friends of the court halls. The entire riff-raff of royal parasites have been sent to live elsewhere at somebody else's expense. A big load has been taken off the backs of the poor, overworked, half-fed, uneducated Portuguese people.

But there is one black spot in the news of the revolution. We refer to the stories of religious intolerance and religious persecution.

The Portuguese living in America, who realize that the sympathy of this and of all other countries is vitally important to the new government, should write to their friends, and urge upon them the importance of religious fairness, the atrocity and the danger of religious persecution.

A true republic, whether it be in Portugal, in Switzerland or in America, tolerates and encourages with non-interference ALL RELIGIOUS BELIEFS, while permitting national recognition and indorsement of no special religion.

Religious bodies or individuals in Portugal, as long as they pay their own expenses, as long as they are not levying taxes on the people, or exercising government powers, have absolute rights and privileges, and should be guaranteed safety and government protection, the same as any other body of citizens.

It is outrageous that monks, or nuns, should be deprived of property rightfully theirs. Brutalities in the past, inflicted by a monarchy and a vile system of taxation, do not excuse savage retaliation against the innocent and helpless in the present.

The duty of Portugal, as fast as may be, is to re-establish law and order, to protect life, and, above all, to enforce respect for sincere religious convictions of whatever nature.

Portugal is a republic, and will remain a republic, and outside threats of interference have little meaning and will avail nothing.

But Portugal as a republic wants the respect of other republics, and of the rest of the world. And Portugal must set an example in civilization, in decency and suppression of barbarous cruelty.

There is some excuse for the people in the fact that eighty per cent. have been kept in a vile condition of ignorance, unable to read or write. For rough street fights and rioting an excuse may be found in the poverty of the people.

But there is no excuse whatever for attacks upon priests or nuns, peaceful non-combatants. Such attacks disgrace those concerned and alienate sympathy from an otherwise righteous cause.

The business of the authorities in Portugal now is to establish the republic firmly by justice and order.

Later, decent taxation, regulation of the public debt, and REPUDIATION OF AS MUCH OF THAT DEBT AS WAS UNJUSTLY INCURRED WILL HELP THE FINANCES AND DIMINISH POVERTY.

Public schools established on the American principle will remedy the evil of ignorance, and will soon replace the Portugal that cannot read or write with a Portugal well educated by public school teachers.

Meanwhile, the important thing for Portugal is the moral and the material support of the outside world. And a cessation of religious persecution and hatred must accompany the demand for foreign approval.

Every decent American entitled to the protection of a free government in this country is glad to see Portugal or any other country change from a monarchy to a republic.

Every American worthy of the name believes in the principle of absolute religious toleration, public school education free for all, complete separation of church and state, respect for the beliefs, religions and others, of all the citizens, and state indorsement OF NO BELIEF, religious or other.

There can be no freedom in Portugal or anywhere else unless there be full freedom FOR ALL, including freedom of conscience.

How We May Give Rightly

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN

I fear the better received publication of the Parkerside story of charity will do great harm.

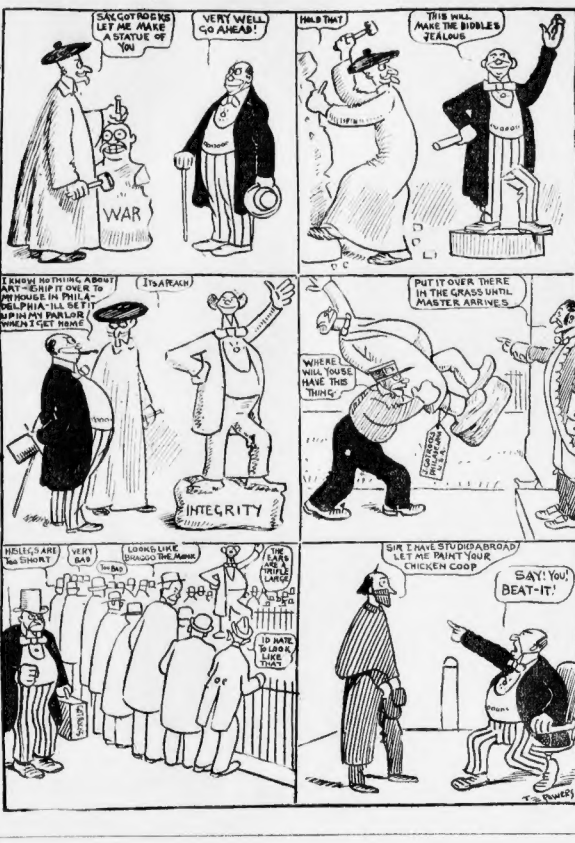

I have been engaged in charity work for many years. I have seen hundreds of cases. In one summer, for example, I received at my home, and in the streets, and in the homes of my friends, more than a hundred cases of charity work.

Even after investigation, they need much more, and unless one is willing to give them that, the kindness that is willing to give anything, for the reason that it is easy living on others' work perpetuates the condition of pauperism.

One of the best known doctors of a Presbyterian church in New York, some years ago, said to me, "I have seen hundreds of cases of charity work in this city in the way they are given."

I have seen hundreds of cases of charity work in this city in the way they are given. I have seen hundreds of cases of charity work in this city in the way they are given.

I have seen hundreds of cases of charity work in this city in the way they are given. I have seen hundreds of cases of charity work in this city in the way they are given.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES OF The Double Standard

By Winifred Black

Dr. KATHERINE B. DAVIS of the University of Chicago says she wishes polygamy would come into fashion and under the law again.

"It's had my way," says Doctor Davis, "I'd give every man in the country just as many wives as he could support. I'd have them married to him by law, and make him take care of them and their children, and I'd do away with the unwritten law which says that what is condoned for a man is wrong for a woman."

"Would women be happy in polygamy?" "No, I suppose not; but they'd be happier than they are now under the double standard system."

Well, Doctor Katherine B. Davis of the University of Chicago, you are commonsensical, whatever else you may be.

But I don't believe you mean a word you say.

A woman of your intelligence and experience certainly knows that the average husband is pretty decently faithful to the average wife.

The man we read about in the papers who leads a double life is played up in the headlines just because he does lead a double life, and is, therefore, a kind of exception to the rule.

No woman is expected to submit to a husband who is unfaithful to her. If a woman believes her husband to be a practicing polygamist she has a remedy right at hand. The nearest divorce court will settle the whole business for her in no time.

I hope to hear a woman talk about the double standard of morals. It always sounds so enviable.

I know a man and his wife who are always quarrelling as to which is the dearest when the gripes come around. Each takes pride in getting the symptoms first, and neither one of them ever seems to think that it would be a good plan to keep from having any symptoms at all.

If the men want to rise and protest against the double standard, why, then, move for a woman's right to be a woman.

But for us women it seems to me the thing to do is to go on being good ourselves and not think so much about being happy.

I'm sorry for a man who hasn't the strength of character to love one woman and be faithful to her. But I don't see why his wife should want to make herself as weak and as foolish as he is—just to get even.

We are better than men, we women. I'm not ashamed of that fact. I'm proud of it. I hope women will keep being better than men—that's the reason they take their hats off to us, and stand aside and let us pass, and help us when we're in trouble, and sympathize with us when we are caught in the meshes of our own follies and weaknesses.

No polygamy for me, thank you, Doctor Davis. I'd rather have an ideal, even if I fall short of it once in a while, than to get down and walk in the muddy gutter just because somebody else is walking there.

Thought Transference

By THOMAS TAPPER

Is there such a thing as thought transference?

Certainly there is.

If a writer thinks and expresses himself clearly, it is a reader's business to get the writer's thought exactly. It transfers from the writer's mind to the reader's.

But before the transference can take place there must exist a definite mental picture in the writer's mind; he must present it in words so that none of its lines, lights and shades are lost. Then the reader by an equally careful process must receive the series of actions; lifting the picture from the words and fixing it in his own mind.

Thus thought is transferred. When it is done carefully and persistently a man becomes educated.

All kinds of thought are transferable. When the great teacher said "the end is in the beginning," he transferred a thought to you, if you are willing to receive it. But, instead of making a new teacher to you, he has passed on the thought of his own wisdom. He has passed on the thought of his own wisdom. He has passed on the thought of his own wisdom.

When a man meets you on the street and tells you a story, he transfers a thought to you, if you are willing to receive it. But, instead of making a new teacher to you, he has passed on the thought of his own wisdom. He has passed on the thought of his own wisdom. He has passed on the thought of his own wisdom.

When a man meets you on the street and tells you a story, he transfers a thought to you, if you are willing to receive it. But, instead of making a new teacher to you, he has passed on the thought of his own wisdom. He has passed on the thought of his own wisdom. He has passed on the thought of his own wisdom.
